Narrative Overview

The story centers around an estranged father trying to find his daughter in a small town in the north west of america. The missions will chronicle the events of the story running parallel from both perspectives, with crossover between the two. The daughter will be finding her way out of the city, which was locked down by the military but recently overrun, while the father makes his way into the city to look for her.

The story chronicles the events of the daughters escape from the city and the fathers search for his daughter, chronicling the near misses, the eventual re-connection and the trials and tribulations along the way.

Campaign Overview

The campaign consists of a tutorial level which explains the basic mechanics to the players through switching perspectives. After this, the player is able to choose a mission to play first, they pick the father or the daughter.

The daughter's mission will chronicle her journey from her apartment in the heart of the town to her goal of reaching the outskirts of the town. Her mission includes gameplay segments in her apartment, a carpark, the sewers and a central warehouse finale.

The father's mission chronicles his journey from the outskirts of the town at the military checkpoint, passing through a residential district and a park, making his way through a warehouse on his way to the apartment.

Both levels culminate at the same warehouse where they eventually find each other.

The campaign missions are designed to be played in either order, with both orders offering new clues and context for the player, such as hidden weapons spotted in 1 mission being able to be found and picked up in the other mission, as well as events from both missions beng hinted at in the other mission (such as a smoke flare going off in the daughters mission being able to be spotted in the distance from the fathers POV.)

Both missions will also give the player access to unique weapons and qualities possessed by each character, the daughter is faster, with less health, but starts with a pistol, and uses non-military weaponry, and has a focus on movement, avoidance of conflict (if the player desires) with lots of height variation in her level.

The father has military weapons, but has less access to ammunition and is slower, but has more health. The fathers gameplay has a focus around scavenging for resources and hunkering down.

Individual Mission 2 - Martyn

Level Overview & Narrative

Elise's mission starts after she leaves her apartment after seeing the world fall apart outside. Chaos has erupted in her apartment complex, causing the main exit to be blocked, however an apartment down the hall's door is open, she exits through the window and down the fire escape.

Her main goal is simple: survive and escape as the city falls around her.

She drops into an alley and moves towards the parking lot, where she encounters a small group of zombies. Does she engage or evade? Either way, she is funneled by the destruction around her to the main road outside of her apartment, where she descends into an open sewer drain.

In the sewer she can hear the near growls of something ominous in the depths below. The sewer is dark, so she has to rely on her torch to aid her journey. The deeper she gets, and the more enemies she fights through, the growls get closer and closer. She enters a large electrical room in the sewer system, a service elevator is shut down and she has to turn on 3 switches in the area in order to get it working. It is here that she encounters the behemoth. A large enemy seemingly impervious to damage. Her only options are to run and hide while she turns on the remaining switches in the rooms and caverns.

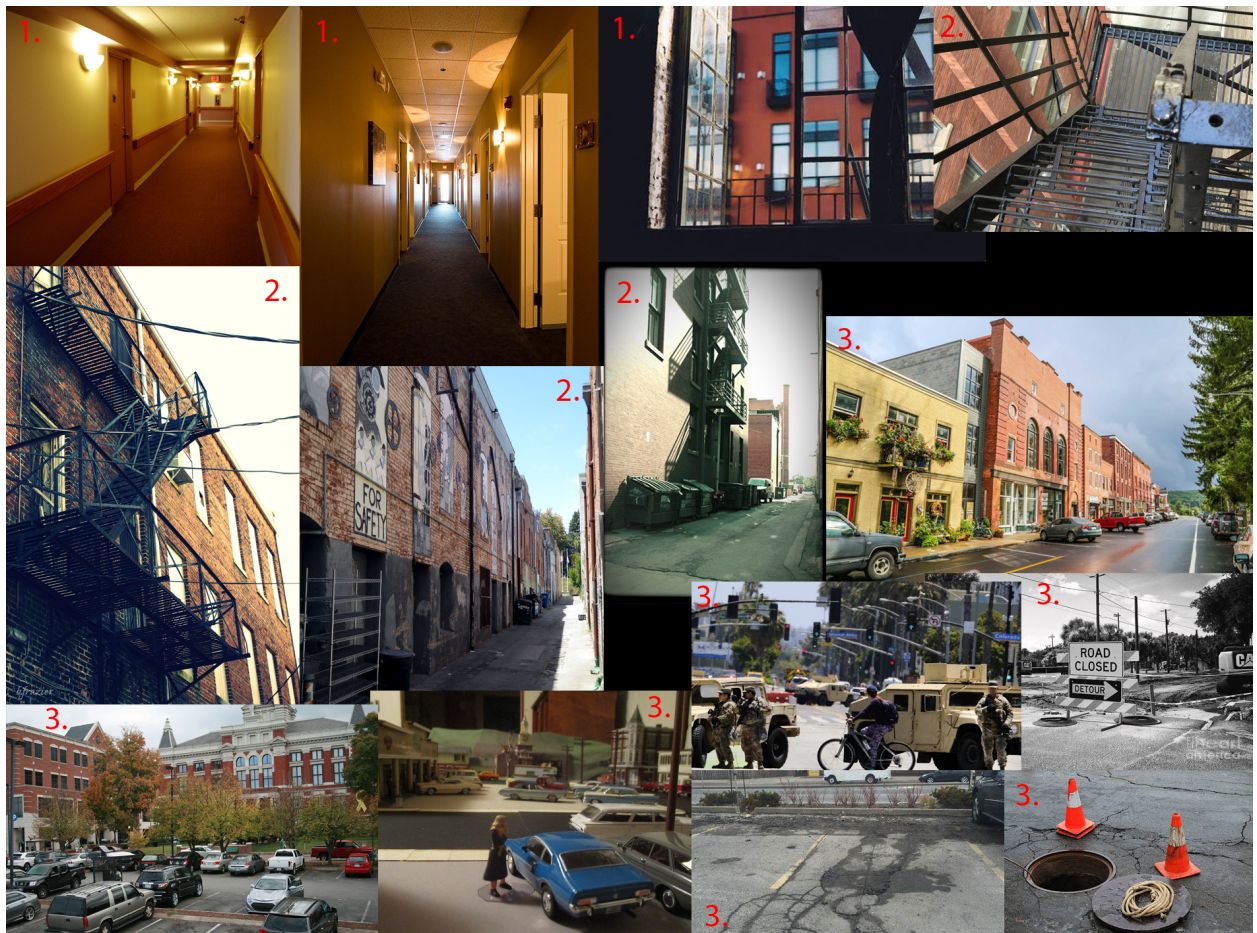

Once she turns on all 3 switches, she can make a stealthy attempt for the elevator or a mad dash.

Either way, the service elevator takes her up to the outskirts of a warehouse, where she must scale some scaffolding. From that vantage point she takes stock of her current location, below, entering the warehouse, she thinks she sees her father, but it can't be? Right?

Despite her flight response telling her to make for the town border, her intrigue and better nature guides her to aid the man she took to be her father below in the warehouse. She descends the scaffolding to outside the door of the warehouse, which is low on power and is operated via generator. From the inside she can hear a commotion, gunfire. She starts the generator, which begins to charge the door to open, but that noise draws hordes of enemies to her location. She has to fight them off while the door opens.

At the culmination of the fight, she finishes off the last of the enemies, and the door behind her opens. It's her father. She hasn't seen him in years, he looks much older than she remembers. Despite her hatred of her father, the only thing she feels in that moment of horror is relief.

Mood Boards/Colour palettes

1. Elise exists her apartment into the hallway, she continues down the hallways until she sees an open door leading into an abandoned room with and open window.
2. Elise descends the fire escape and has her first encounter with zombies in the alley below, she continues down the alley toward the parking lot.
3. When she reaches the parking lot there is a large group of enemies, Elise can fight them or stealth past them to the road, she reaches an open manhole, the only way forward is down.

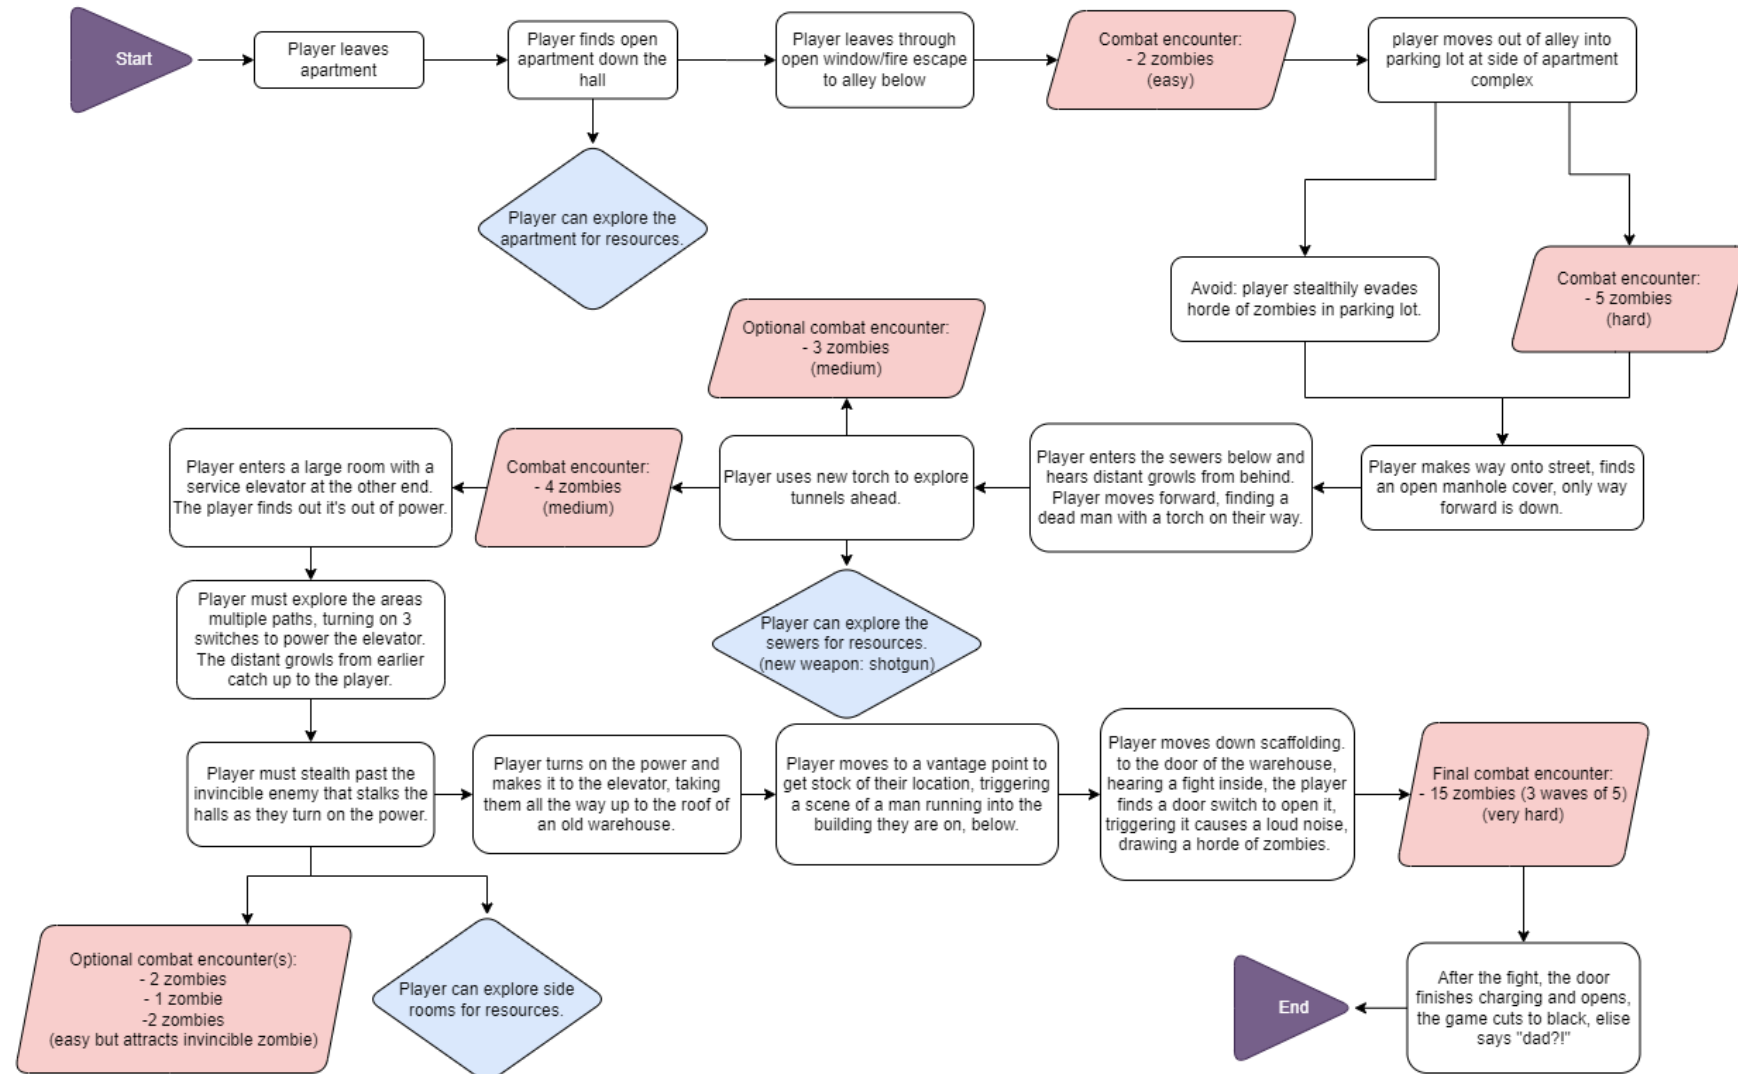

1. Elise descends the ladder into the sewer system below the town, here she must use her torch and navigate through the labyrinth.
2. Elise journeys further into the sewer encountering enemies along the way, natural light from the surface shines through from above.
3. She enters into a larger room, with an old service elevator at the end, in order to power it up, Elise must navigate through the space and find 3 breakers to activate the elevator. While she does this, a large invincible creature stalks the halls, she must use her environment and stealth to navigate.

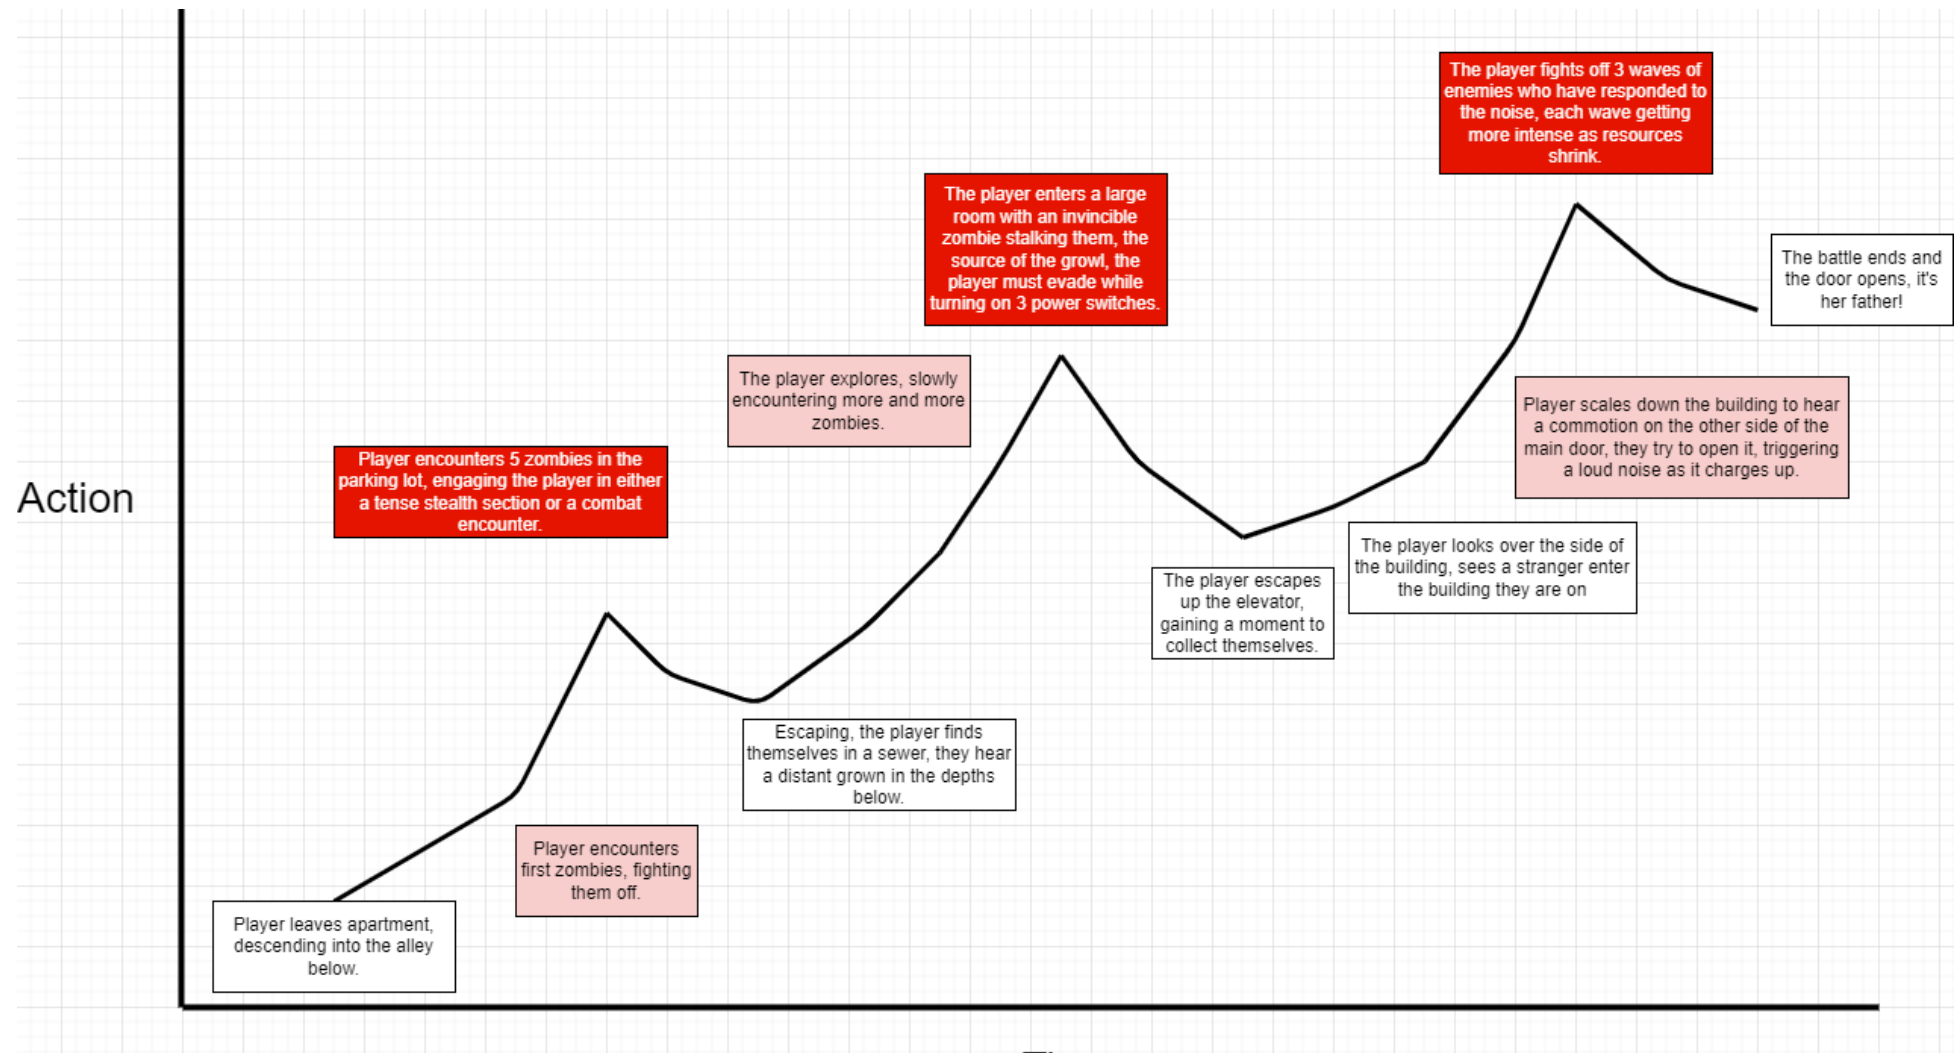

1. The elevator opens up on the roof of the factory, Elise takes stock of her location, noticing a stranger enter the warehouse below.
2. Elise descends to the warehouse exterior, looking for an entrance, she finds a big front door operated via a switch, she must activate it, causing a lot of noise. She must fight off the oncoming hordes of enemies outside the entrance, using leftover warehouse pallets and storage containers for cover.
3. Once charged, the door opens, elise turns to see the stranger break through. It's her father.
